The state of matters in the British Parliament, where measures which are unquestionably not in accordance with the views of the nation at large have been forced through simply because the Liberal Government has so large a majority at its back, and in some instances, as for example the Old Age Pensions Bill, against the opinion of those . undoubtedly best qualified to judge, is certainly not encouraging, and leads to the suggestion that there may be a limit to the cholors. principle that in the multitude of counsellors there is wiedom. This proverb is no doubt | before noon and the small craft returned to the true if the counsellors are all men qualified to judge, and uninfluenced by personal considerations. But, where these two essential elements are wanting, government by mere numbers is apt to be as faulty as government by any single individual. THE AMERICAN PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

New York, September 8. On the 20th instant President Roosevelt will return to Washington to take command of the election campaign and to prepare his Message to Congress. The Message will contain a proposal for increasing the standing Army from 60,000 to 100,000 men, partly with a view to the defence of Hawaii being strengthened. To day, a Labour festival of 40,000 workers marched in procession through New York. The Labour League now has 2,000,000 members.

A New York message says that the Presidential election campaign has now actively On Saturday evening, Governor Hughes and Senator Beveridge delivered speeches at Youngstown to 12 000 employees of the steel works there. They describ d Mr. Bryan as a monument of political misconception and a signpost pointing to business demoralization. At the end of this month, Mr. Taft will begin a tour through all the States, Mr. Bryan wil begin a three weeks' tour to morrow. His main object is to bid for the labour and negro votes. It is externely doubtful whether or not the Labour Party will support him, and the negroes are still hesitating as to what action they shall

A TRADE MARK CASE IN JAPAN

We learn from the Japan Mail that decision has been given in the Patent Bureau on a protest filed by Herr J. S. Staedtler of Nuernberg against M. Takakawa, a pencil manufacturer of Osaka. On Feb. 24th 1904, the German manufacturer registered a trade-mark showing a representation of a human face within a crescent and the description "J.S. Staedtler's 'Moon" affixed to all pencils manufactured by him. His complaint was that a Japanese registered a trade-mark con-leting of a new moon with the inscription "144, T. S. Standard," and that this closely resumbled his trademark. He further held that the registration of the Japanese trade-mark should be taken as nul and void since it would create preplexity in the public mind vis-a-vis the German mark. morning. Mr. Nakamatsu, Director of the Patent Buroau, admitted the protest and ordered the Japanese manufacturer to refrain from using the trades mark on pencils made by him.

A Tientsin resident, Mr. H. W. D. Schmidt, writes to a London comtemporary as follows: -Regarding the British climate: Have you ever lived in a climate which for any period of the year prevented your doing whatever had to be done, in a climate where, say, it was impossible, or at least unwise, to venture out before sundown? Do you keep half a dozen stoves going night and day for five months through the winter to warm the house? Does your climate restrict the use of the water supply to half an hour a day on account of frost? Do you for several months have to wran up nose and ears whenever you go outside the house? SUPREME COURT.

Monday, 21st September.

IN URIMINAL JURISDICTION.

BEFORE ME. H. H. J. GOMPERTZ (ACTIN Puisne Judge).

ALLEGED FALSE DECLARATION. Lan Kin was indicted on the charge of making a false declaration at the Supreme Court on May 16th. Prisoner pleaded not guilty, and the following jurors were called :-P. R. Wolfe (foreman), K. Laurenz, F. S. Allen, G. A. Caldwell, R. C. Walker, A. E. Asger and D. W. Towne.

The Hon, Mr. Rees Davies, K.C., Attorney General, instructed by Mr. F. B. L. Bowley. Crown Solicitor, prosecuted, and prisoner was not defended.

The Attorney-General stated that this was case of making a false declaration before the Commissioner for Oaths in the register of the Supreme Court in a matter affecting probate. the lead, Cooks and Barros following hard The indictment in perjury cases was always rather elaborate, and Counsel expected that the gentlemen of the jury would probably think, when he had related the facts connected with this case, that it was somewhat complicated. But when all the facts were laid before them it would be perfectly simple, and the issue they would have to decide was a simple one. The case arose out of the disputed ownership of a parties were poor, and no steps were taken to completed the distance in the present year the land bailiff discove el that part of the house was an encreachment on Crown land, and gave the widow notice to move it. Then the widow went to defendant and asked her to give up possession of her part of the house. The defendant at first refused, but was afterwards persuaded to do so by prosecutrix and probably by the influence brought to bear by the Inspector of Police at Shankiwan. As soon as defendant left, prosecutrix let the house to another woman, and shortly afterwards a summons was issued by the magistrate, on the application of a min named Lai Lenng, to eject the occupier of the houss. Prosecutrix instituted inquiries and found that this man had obtained morning at the Tajping Theatre where homage head of the sergeant, followed by another who a grant of administration from the Supreme Court to the estate of deceased, alleging that Rutherford, referees; and T. Prosecutrix alleged that the petitioner was no inaugurating this race and providing the prizes relation whatever to her deceased husband, who never had a brother. The practical effect of this crime was to deprive prosecutrix of her property. The case was an important one because although the property in question was small, there was a serious question involved. It was therefore the duty of the Crown take up this case to protect the public against frauds of this description. -When evidence had been heard his Lordship directed the jury to find a verdict of not guilty, as there was not sufficient evidence to convict. The jury returned a verdict accordingly, and the prisoner was discharged.

The only thing that swimmers had to contend with was a rather strong current, which soon fatigued a number of the weaker men: Thirteen competitors entered for the race, and these were sent away at the Police pier, Kowloon, on the time announced for the start, by Mr. Frank Lammert. George Witchell took the outermost course to the east, while Rozz Pereira struck out for the west the remainder of the competitors swimming between the pair. By these performances Mr. Orwell loan fund. Wright has surpassed his brother Wilbur, who who stayed in the air for 38 minutes during the best flight he has yet made (fifteen miles at Lo Mans. France).

The precise nature of the accident which has destroyed Mr. Orville Wright's aeroplane has not been stated in the telegrams announcing the disaster. French criticisms have been to the effect that the management of the American machine requires the greatest experience and the nicest dexterity, and that a moment's inattention would endanger the driver's life. The starting arrangements have also been criticised as startling. Mr. Wilbur Wright recently made some interesting statements to a representative of the Paris edition of the New York Heruld, at Lo Mans:-" My impression of flight, in its most perfect form," said Mr. Wilbur Wright, "is flight without the use of a motor. At the present time it is essential to employ some. method of propulsion through the sir, because we do not know enough about the science of flying to do otherwise. Some day we shall learn more about the subject, and then will come the great buzzard flying, the great revolution I refer to. If you watch the buzzard flying, and there are many of them in our district in America, you will see that under most conditions he expends exceedingly little energy. He does what we would like to do He takes advantage of the rising currents of air in order to mount aloft and then, when he has attained a considerable height, he planes forward with outstretched wings, covering many miles sometimes before he is near the ground. Then, if he wishes to go still further, he again profits by a rising eddy of wind and again lets himself glide downwards, when the moment has come. His output of force is practically nil; he merely balances himself. Wealready know that the wind travels in eddies, or spirals, which are conclike in form, and on which all manner of objects are carried upwards. These currents of air are just the things which disturb us when we fly under present conditions, because we have to through them and counterest their influence by mechanical means. When the art is developed they will aid us rather than annoy us. It is when there is almost an absence of wind that these spirals become more pronounced. When the wind is very strong they do not take the same form, and consequently are not of the same value for lifting purposes. The buzzard does not go out in high winds. When we study the question we find that most birds remain under shelter when the wind attains anything like considerable force, and that is why was alaim that, with one of our present machines and with reasonable practice, we can remain out flying as long as the birds."

BRITISH NAVAL POLICY. THE PROPOSED BIG LOAN,

Daily Telegraph was as follows : meet the necessities of the flet in the next few sny such menace. years without disorganising the annual Budgets or casting a heavy burden on the present

There is no idea of a Naval Defence Act on the lines of that introduced by Lord George Hamilton in the spring of 1889. This measure was brought forward to overtake arrears of shipbuilding which had accumulated during a period of unprecedented activity abroad. It specified the sum which was to be spent in a limited number of years, and the manner in which it should be used. The requirements of the Navy were known, because its deficiencies were apparent and it was common knowledge that the Admiralty regarded the then existing situation with the gravest concern. The relative strength of the Fleet had fallen year by year until it barely exceeded that of one European Power alone, France. The Naval Defence Act was framed to make good this leeway.

In the present circumstances the conditions are different in all essentials. It is admitted that the Navy is new well up to a two-Power standard. In the present international situation no greater margin of strength is considered bost when called upon to do so by a police officer | necossary. But that superiority is seriously challenged by the programmes which have been The Sergeant stated that when off Punlowan adopted by other Powers, and specifically by the amended German Navy Act passed this spring. Under this scheme Germany has laid down or ordered ten vessls of the Dreadnough type, and next year proposes to begin construction of four more. In other countries renewed activity in shipbuilding has occurred the exact scope of which has not been finally settled. In these conditions a Naval Defence Act, framed on the lines of the measure o 1889, specifying the number of men-of-war to be built, and their types, cannot be brough forward. The future requirements of the Navy cannot be stated until foreign programmes have crystalised. It is consequently impossible A figherman named Ma Fat was proceeded to foresce exactly how many men-of-warbattleships, ornisers and terpedo craft - will have to be ordered for the British Navy in 1910 much less in 1912, or 1913. On the other hand it is already evident the unless this rivalry can Prosecutor stated that while pursuing be checked the expenditure on the British Navy must be largely increased.

TO PROMOTE DISARMAMENT. The proposal now under consideration is a simple one. It would be a declaration contained; some pieces of paper, which were translated into-terms of cash, of the country's intention to maintain the two-Power s'audard at all costs. There is no leeway to make up. but there is a future to be safeguarded. Not only in this country, but throughout the world, there has been a deeply seated impression that the Government are not sincerely attached to the two-Power standard, and that for party ends they may whittle it down. By setting aside £100,000,000 for the Fleet they would advertise their policy in every newspaper in the world, and in all the deliberative assemblies, until it became world-notorious.

The following telegram dated the 10th inst. advance, as in the case of the Naval Defence towards the readjustment of finance it is Act. SHIPPING SUBSIDIES IN JAPAN

ABOLITION OF SPECIAL BOUNTY URGED.

The Tokyo Asuliz has an article in which urges the Government to discontinue the pay ment of a bounty for the European, American and Australian shipping lines. According t the Budget for the current fiscal year the total amount of shipping subsidies is estimated at twelve million yen. Unless the law relating to shipping subsidies is amended there is no doubt that the expenditure will steadily go on Such a loan would not be hypothecated in increasing year after year. BOAT THAT LEAPS.

A new craft, of remarkable appearance and action, which darted about the water at a speed which was little short if marvellous, furnished quite a sensation at Cowes recently. This extraordinary vessel was a bydroplane, designed and constructed by Major Le Las. -She looks, says a contemporary, something like a river punt, is about fourteen feet in length, and is decked fore and aft, having some machinery installed on her floor amidships. There are two rudders estern and the propeller turnster itself downwards, into the sea. The ittle craft glides over the water rather than through it and in order to do this she has a flat bottem and is of remarkable lightness with the largest available propulsive power. The motor works directly on the spatt without any clutch: Hydroplanes of different sizes and horsepower are said to have shown themselves capable of doing twenty-five, and thirty-seven miles an

The conspicuous features about the boat skimming the Solent—spart from her extraordinary speed-were that when travelling she was clear of the water for quite half her length, and that she seemed at times to get along by succession of leaps. It is expected that such craft may be usefully employed in the work of and make clear to all parties what, if the situation exploration.

WEIHAIWEI.

Concluding his report on Weihaiwei for 1907, Mr. J. H. Stewart-Lockbart, the Commissioner,

Although the general trade of Weihaiwei does not improve, the natives of the territory show signs of a gradually increasing prosperity, which is to a great extent due to the series of good harvests which they have enjoyed ever since the British flag was hoisted here. The value of agricultural land has risen greatly during the past few years, which has led to an eagerness to redeem mortgaged lands. Perhaps one of the surest indications of an advance in prosperity is shown by the fact that the gradual increase of prices for goods of almost every description, including Chinese necessaries, appears to produce no change for the worse in the normal standard o living among the larger proportion of th population. Apart from the good harvests the comparative prosperity of the present time is also partly due to the visits of the British fleet, which, lowever, have been neither so long nor so frequent in recent times as they were formerly. But the prosperity of the people is due still more to the small but steady stream of money that flows into this territory from Manchuria. Many labourers from Weihaiweiger In the second paragraph, Mr. Stuart states find work in that country and always maintain connection with their old village home, to which many eventually return with large savings. I may be added, too, that a small portion of the money earned and saved by Chinese coolies, natives of Weihainel who went to South Africa, is now circulating in this territory. Most friendly relations have been maintained

Government and the Chinese Officials in the districts coterminous with this territory. The latter have always shown themselves willing to reader assistance in all cases in which their co-operation has been invited. In fact, during the past six years the most harmonious relations have always existed between the representatives of the Government of China in the province of | Shantung and the Government of Weibaiwei. FRUIT-GROWING AND AFFORESTATION.

Fruit cultivation in Welhaiwel, reports the Commissioner, has now been in progress long enough to prove that apples, pears, plums, grapes, goessberries, and black currents can all be successfully and profitably produced. With regard to apples, it has been found that while most English varieties fail to keep, several American apples have kept very well, particular, the Newtown Pippin keeps well into March, and its culture on a large scale should prove very profitable, as it could be shipped t markets more distant than Shanghai, possibly as far as Singapore,

Grapes ripened perfectly, and should prove to be one of the most profitable fruits, as it would give a quicker return than most other kinds. Posches and nectarines were small an disappointing, although the trees grew very well. This fruit may, however, improve when the trees are older. Apricots cropped freely, but the fruit wa small and nearly all spoilt by heavy rain. Raspberries have not proved hardy, the cane having been all killed by the winter. Figs also suffer from the cold, and in con sequence the spring crop in lost. There seems to be no doubt that Weibniwe could be made a profitable centre for growing fruit, but there is no sign of either Europeans or Chinese being willing to come forward t invest capital here in fruit, or, indeed, in any _other_enterprise_

Afforestation was proceeded with on a sms scale. As the plan of raising fir trees from seedhad proved a failure, 150,000 one-year-old seedings of Piaus massoniana were imported from Japan and have done well. About 2,000 ars raised by General Sir Arthur Dorward when Commissioner of this territory were planted out. on the Island. Acadias, willows, and planes have been planted for avenues, and have all done well. The acaois in particular makes very free growth, and seems to be the most suitable free tree for plantation and avenues. The only two flowering and ornamental shrubs which have proved really useful, in addition to those mentioned in last wear areport are the Sea Buckthorn and Pyracantha Lelandii. Of evergreens, the common green Eurrymus and Piliceporum are the most useful. Laurels and other evergreens have proved failures. Roses have grown and flowered well and horbaceous flowers have proved successful.

Many seeds of local trees and shrubs have been collected, and propagation from stock of various shrubs is being steadily carried on. The appearance of the hills could be much improved by afforestation, but this would necessitate tree planting on a much larger scale than can be afforded by a territory which is not self-supporting. -

RETIREMENT OF THE OLDEST CUSTOMS COMMISSIONER.

Mr. Edward Bangs Drew, whose resignation from the Imperial Maritime Customs cocurred last mouth while he was on furlough in America, was the senior Commissioner in the Service, having joined in 1865 as one of three young men then recruited in the United States for the Chinese Customs, the others being Mr. E. . Taintor, who died at Bhanghai in 1878, and Mr. F. E. Woodruff who resigned in 1897 and is living at home. Mr. Drew was born at Orleans, Massachusetts, U.S.A., in 1843 and graduated from maryard College in 1865, obtaining the M. A. degree three years later. After studying Chinese for two years at Chefoo and Peking he was appointed Acting Commissioner of Unstoms at Chinking in 1867, and Commissioner at Kinkiang in 1868. He was subtequently in charge at many ports, among them Foochow, Chefoo, Ningpo, Canton and Tientein, was Statistical Secretary at Shanghai from 1882 to 1887 and Chief Secretary at Peking from 1889 to 1893. He had been de- far in excess of homeward requirements; theretached in 1871 to accompany Mr. Low, the fore the position of Singapore, lying in American Minister, as Becretary of Legation | mainway of this ocean trade, entitled it to look with the U. S. and Canada in 1896. He also shared the vicissitudes and anxieties of the Boxer siege of Tientsin in 19.0. He holds the Brevet Briton of the Becond Class, the Double Dragon, Second Division, Second-Class, and Kung P'ai of the First Class, from China, and is a Chevalier of the Order of Francis Josephy Austria. Mr. Drew was married in 1874; his elder son is a civil engineer and his younger son is now at Harvard University. Of his four daughters one is married in India and one in America. Mr. and Mrs. Drew will continue for some time to make their home at Cambridge, Massachusetts, but he hopes in a few years to revisit the Far East and look up his friends here. -N.-C. Daily News,

SHIPPING EINGS.

REPORT BY THE SING PORE REGISTRAR OF IMPORTS AND EXPORTS. Among papers laid on the table at the Straits

Legislative Council meeting last week was a report on Shipping Freight Conferences operating in the Straits Settlements, prepared by Mr. Sinarte Registrar of Import and Experie. that he welcomes the enquiry as most desirable in the interests of this Colony, whose trade is being throttled by a number of so-called Conferences, which are worked in the interest of ship-owners, who have little concern in its welfare except are source of profit, because the cargo has to go forward, if not from here, from other ports of call or outports, where their agents are prepared to grant through bills of lading often at the same rates of freight. The majority of those forming the Com mittees of the Chambers of Commerce belong to firms in receipt of special or secret rebates. and therefore can hardly be expected to express their views without bias. SINGAPORE, PENANG AND BINGKOK. There are in Singapore and Penang known to be five Shipping Rings, besides which the rebate.

system is in operation to Rangoon and Bangkok. The first and most important is that termed "The Straits Homeward Conference," which is a combination of steamship owners and merchante, most of whom are steamship agents, and the operations of which extend to European ports. That the Conference could not have been successfully carried on for so many years, if special advantages in the form of secret rebates had not been granted to the larger firms, goes without saying, for the latter generally hold steamship agencies and the commissions pained on this portion of their business, combined with a share in five per cent, of all freights from the Strails, seem too great advantages to risk losing, by chartering vessely or otherwise encouraging competition. This Conference has been the subject of consideration by a Commission appointed early in 1902 to report how the trade of the Colony was affected by its operations, since which year its character and policy have not altered; the only change being in the frequent raising and lowering of rates based on some principle known only to the members.

Mr. Stuart gives a resumé of the Commission's findings and reviews them extensively. He points out that the position as regards the fact that merchants in Singapore have practically no option but to ship their goods by steamers of Conference lines is unchanged, and no attempts have been made to attract other vessels by means of subsidies or otherwise, the loss of rebate being too serious to incur and the larger independent firms too few in number.

When the Conference began operations, it raised rates to what may be presumed to be a fair level, 20s to London for general cargo, 22s. 6d. to Liverpool, and 20s. to the Continent, excluding Havre, Bremen and Hamburg, and as the admitted object was to raise freights to a fair paying level, either it did so, or failed to carry out the purpose for which it was established.

BLEEDING CARGO.

There is, however, ample evidence to show that the policy has been not to charge fair rates but to "bleed" cargo. Thus in May, 1900, the freight on tin was raised from 27s. 6d. to 40s. Now, this is an excellent class of cargo, easily handled, stowed and seldom lost, and as one ton occupies eight cubic feet the ship-owner no. doubt rejoiced at the prospects of receiving over £12 per 50 cubic feet.

The Managing Director of the Smelting Comyany which deals with over two-thirds of the production, threatened so successfully to after deduction of ten per cent to shippers gell in London, and thus deprive the local members of the Conference who are merchants of the handling of this trade, that in one week | the principal merchants here, and the the old rate was reverted to. The same policy was again pursued in November, 1906. when the article was raised by 5s. and again the energetic remonstrance of the gentleman now helding this position in the Company, and much the same tactics, compelled the Conference to reduce the rate not only by the new addition but by 7s. 6d.—or 2s. 6d. less.

It has not been depied that other peris not so favourably situated enjoyed lower rates, and it is on record that only last year from the port of Macresar, which is further from the market of | gested as a practical remedy, which, however, consumption, rations were being sent as dunnage at 45s. per 20 cwt, against 75s. charged in Singapore. A protest of shippers here resulted in the rate being raised to the Singapore level, The expansion of such a place as Macassar, which, like Singapore, is not a producer, but collects from other places, is attributed by some to better shipping and banking facilities, and the position now taken up by conference tion to this iccality only. apologists is that expansion of other eastern places and consequert direct dealing with Europe would have occurred in the ordinary course, though it may be Conference operations. have hastened the inevitable. SINGAPORE'S RIGHT.

But, as is well known, the demand for outward tonnage fr m Europe to the Far East is is far in advance of most of its competitors. Considering our proximity to home markets by over a thousand miles compared with Maces. gar and the exceptional circumstances above etated. Singapore? should be in a position to attract trade, but the Conference has been to throw away our natural advantages by taking cargo at less rates than ruling at this port, which however, the steamer generally touches at en route to Europe.

Mr. Stuart-gives an example of the manner in which foreign interests are fostered, with the explanation that the Conference does not confine its tenderness in he interests of American consumers to one article, but that the obliging British shop owners would carry on January 1st of this year any description of produce to London at the quoted rate, and there tranship it from one

She was under medical care but the head became worse until the whole top and back of it were a mass of scab. The poor child could not sleep, and we had to cover her head with a special cap to prevent her scratching it in her pain. I felt sick at the sight of it until I com-menced to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment after the child had suffered about ten months. From the moment that Cuticura was used until ahe was completely cured her head progressed, and one tablet of Onticura Boap and one box of Cutleura Cintment oured her. I am extremely sorry that: i did not try Cuticura before, as I am certain that the pain in her head caused my child to go cross-eyed. I have great faith in Cuticura Soap and Oint-ment. J. H. With such a large number of interested lines: British versels belonging to the Glen, Ben and Shire Companies for some years took little or no cargo from Singapore, but searched at other places as far distant as the Pacific Coast, the Philippines and so forth, for freight taken, it is needless to say, at competitive rates.

No doubt they were recompensed by a share in the profite realised by the Conference. on cargo consigned, the secret 5 per cent. on all Straits freights paid to some of amount which was presumed to be fair and adequate for the carriage home by the various vessels; but details of the inner working of the Ring have never become public.

THE TSAR'S SPY.

MYSTERIOUS RUSSIAN'S WORK IN LONDON.

The secret agent of the Russian Government who keeps a keen eye upon all Russians wisiting England is no ordinary detective, but the motive power of a heterogeneous body of independent individuals representing several nationalities, occupying no official positions and receiving no fixed emolument, each working on his instructions for a specific purpose when called upon, and being paid according to the services rendered.

A very interesting man is this Russian "agent," and a very placky one. It is doubtful whether any Russian could be in London for a week without his (or her) whereabouts and the object of the visit being noted by the distinguished-looking foreigner whose busine's it is to believe every fresh arrival from Russia guilty of intrigue of some kind until he has satisfied himself that he (or she) is innocent. And he knows nearly as much of the Paris as the London Russian colony. His employees are necessarily not all of the highest standard of integrity, and when paying for information he is not always confident that he is receiving value for his money, but takes his chance when it is worth his while to do so. He examines a man offering information whom he does not trust entirely as if he were a-" juge d'instruction," and his visitor a prisoner. On one occasion when a gentleman desirous of making the acquaintances of so interesting a man invited him to his house through a mutual acquaintance, the Russian carefully, inquired. into the occupation and political sympathies of his would-be host. He appears to have no fear of violence or even death, only a strong object tion to being "scored off."

MAN OF MANY ADDRESSES. using an office. It is more than probable that | black, brown, blue, or green all over a surface of | and bareheaded, riding at the top of their speed, business will probably succeed if at dinner-time | That is the question. he looks in at some half-dozen places in randd succession. These few who know his ville are not sure of finding him there. He may be staying in an hotel or in a furnished flat near Piccadilly.

There is just now an even more mysterious Russian residing in London, who takes a keen interest in Russian exiles, especially those who are possessed of ample means. He was at one time connected with the St. Petersburg police, and is believed to have been in the persons confidence of the Tear. He lives in far more luxurious style than the accredited secret service agent. His flat, in the heart of clubland, is elegantly appointed, and his motor and horse carriage and his fors are greaty admired by his neighbours, among whom he is supposed to be connected with the Russian Embassy. But in diplomatic circles he is unlocatable; the St. James' Club does not know him, even as a

He too has emissaries in his employ, and not being so intimately acquainted with London as the official representative of the Russian police. is more dependent on them. His knowledge of English is very imperfect, and he would hardly pass as an educated foreigner. In some of his negotiations, mainly connected with Russian exiles in both Paris and London he has shown a lack of that astuteness which marks the ordinary "agent" of a foreign Power. Everything points to his being a "free lance," and to the Embassy being either ignorant of, audiously indifferent to the nature of his business, which seems to be as lucrative as it 'is mysterious.

HOW TURKISH WOMEN HELPED THE REVOLUTION.

SECRET COURIERS.

Since leaving Uskub for Monastir, writes the special correspondent of a London contemporary, I have discovered that the marvellous transformation of Turkey into a constitutional State has been greatly belped by the Turkish women. They have been employed by that allpowerful organisation, the Young Tark party, in work which would often have been very difficult, if not impossible, to accomplish with safety by the men.

Indeed, a remarkable feature of a remarkable situation is the aspiration to freedom of the Tarkish women here. In Salonika or Constantinople, where there is a large foreign element, it is less astonishing; but that it should reach Monastir shows that the movement is indeed far-reaching.

In Salonkia a lady of distinction, wife of Young Turk officer, appeared in the streets unveiled and carrying a banner on the day that the Constitution was proclaimed. Far from meeting with criticism, she was applauded, and her husband's comrades publicly kissed her hands.

In Monastir they are not quite so far yet, but I have had the satisfaction of being received in the harem of Kesim Pashs, a rich merchant and Young Turk adherent. He introduced me to his wife, Belkiss Hannm, and to his sisters. Farrak Hanum and Monaar Hanum. They were not veiled, were European dress, and had all the charm of high-bred, cultured women. They spoke French, and Belkiss Hanum conversed with case on the political questions of the day.

PRIVILEGED MESSENGERS. All had helped in the conspiracy, or, as they called it, "preliminary work," for the realisation of the present state of things. Many women, they told me, had travelled to and from different centres with important comuseful than men, being immune from tone darker than her bright eyes:

an energetic "Yok, yok, yok!" (No) camefrom all three. They would prosecute no claim for the moment, but the freedom of one sex would-nevessarily entail that of the

The Koran does not prescribe esclusion for women. It avose rather from custom than religion: We spoke of Christianity and all it had done for women, and of the circulation of the Bible.

The Bible is revised in Turkey to ensure toyalty to the Sultan. Thus the word Mace. donia does not occur in the Epistles. Instead "dwellers in the Kossovo, Bitol, and Pristhin before the end of 1909, of "Macedoniaus" the great Apostle alludes to

I can think of nothing more very cool and airy, being made of the finest faccinating than these women, combining that intellectuality of the West with the charm of cover part of the back of the hands—The Globe. Eastern reserve. In appearance their duli white complexion startles at first, but it nudoubtedly throws out the clear lastre of their eyes and hair, which is marvellous.

Coming on here from Uskub many changes ould be noted in the disposition of the populaions, who seem already quite familiar with the Constitution and a little disenchanted with what it has brought. Deep dissatisfaction is shown by the Albanians.

The Albanian has never fused with any other ranch of humanity but is loyal to the Sultan. present, however, it has dawned on the tribat chief that they are no longer free to harry the Christians at pleasure and they are holding. ouncils to consider the situation.

FASHIONS AND FANCIES.

IS SIMPLICITY RETURNING? An unexproted turn was given to dress towards the end of the present season by the wonderful simplicity that characterised the gowns worn at the July meeting at Newmarket and again at Goodwood. Many of our fairest and best-dressed appeared on both occasions in | rivalled in speed and confusion by some of the linens with about a tithe of the tembroidery | cavalry disasters during the war that presently usually considered necessary to make this followed, but the peaceful people of Sacramento Needless to say, this trusted and highly material sufficiently splendid for their wear. The reappearance of the lavouse. are, however, by no means of shabby appearance. tunic gives some colour to the suggestion, but He frequents no restaurant in particular, but how will dairy maids and hay-makers look the man who wants to find him on urgent against the background of the London season?

> A FLORAL TOUCH. A protty little fashion was brought in with the Directoire gowns, that of wearing a little bunch of flowers tucked in to the left side of the bodice. These flowers were seldem natural, but the artificial are now so beautifully made and so cleverly perfumed with the natural odour of the flower they represent that they are really preforable for this purpose to the real. A very pretty grey silk voile costume, cut Directoire fashion and filled in with the snowiest of white creps at the neck, was trimmed round the skirt with a band of blick silk headed with an inch wide double fold of rose pink silk. The trimmings on the bodice were carried out to match this, and the belt was black silk disappearing and reappearing under the folds of the gown in true Directoire fashion. A bunch of pale pink carnations was tucked into this belt on the left side, just below a very wide bow of black silk bordered with pink. The immense hat worn with it was black ohip with very large black wings, huge bows of black silk, and one enormous Malmaison carnation with an aigrette of ite leaves introduced amid the volume of black.

THE FUTURE OF GREY. There has been an absolute rage for pale grey displayed during the whole of the now past season and there is no doubt that this liking for a very lovely colour will be continued for at least some time. At His Majesty's Courts Bome of the most admired of the gowns were in palest grey, and it is said that a very distinguished personage remarked that no other colour appeared to show off beautiful jewels so well as this. Such a remark from such a source will no doubt contribute to the popularity of a refined and effective colour, which is none the worse for its negative quality. It used to be said of black that no one could look fast in that negation of all colour. Old-fashioned people might imagine that the same would be true of grey. Amusingly abundant could be the instances given of the exact opposite of this. How extraordinary it appears that the smart women of the fashionable world appear to model their costumes upon tho smartly-dressed of the half-world, while the latter do their best to resemble their more respectable sisters. There has been a tug-of-war in this respect for pale grey during this season.

The prophets were very certain at the beginning of the London sea on that it was to be a white one. Instead of that, it turned out to. be a pale blue season, and never before have there been such very lovely tones of blue seen as during the last few months. Pretty as Nattier blue is and Saxe, some of the new tones of greyish water-blue and greenish pale blue, have outrivalled these. The worstof it is however, that with these lovely colours those choosing them forget to take into account the quality of their own complexions and the tint of their own hair.

Blue, perhaps, is not so dangerous as pink, but is regrettable to see the party-faced accontuating most unconsciously her pastiness of face by wearing in close proximity to her complexion a very lovely, soft, yet vivid shade of blue which, with a pink white complexion and brightly tinted hair, would have a very different effect, enhancing these charms. For the autumn there are prepared dainty little sets of ruffle, muff, and toque in feathers, and many of these are in the shades of blue to which I have referred. Do not dear reader, choose these blues too bright. There is a rather safe tone resembling that of the lob lia. This is almost invariably becoming. Paler blues are admirable when worn with such perfect complexions as that, for instance, of Princess Alexander of Teck. She munications. As couriers they were more is very fond of this bright blue, which is just a

SOME OTHER COLOURS. In order to parry spies in their dwellings, I have already referred to the very becoming several ladies in Monastir had of late years quality of a vivid tone of emerald green. This, in black, to put on white for the first time, above must be suggested to my readers Tones of purple, again, are occasionally very trying. "There has been no woman spy among us," The sweet shade of manye that our Q reen is so aid Belkiss Hanum. When I asked if their fond of wearing is comparatively harmless, but own emancipation was part of the movement the very vivid, pont fiell purple makes some weavers look absolutely cadaverous.

AUDUT SHOES. Another item in which a decided-obsuge was made during the just past season, is in the colour of shoas. Las, year we were prace. tically limited to black, white, brown and grey. This year out-of-door costumes are worn with blue, red, green or purple shoes. There is no doubt that very artistic resultacan be obtained by having the shoes in harmony with the dress, and it is likely that; in this particular of bright colours our chaussure will attain many davelopments

CALIFORNIA'S FIRST PONY EXPRESS.

Mr. Cornelius Cole, ex-Senator from Califoruia, tells in his "Memoirs" how the first pony express "reached Sacramento, California, long before the first transcontinen al railroad was surveyed. "Those who were there to witness it will never forget the arrival of the first of these express messengers at Sacramento. It was an occasion of great rejnicing, and everybody, big and little, old and young, turned out to see the fun. All business for the time was suspended; even the courts, adjourned for the event. A large number of the citizens of all classes, grave and gay, mounted on fast horses, rode out some miles on the line to meet the incoming wonder.

"The waiting was not long. The little rider upon his charger, under whip and spur, came down upon them like a meteor, but made not the slightest halt to great his many visitors. Then began a race of all that waiting throng. over the stretch back to the city, the like of which has never been seen. It may have been no attention to them and kept in the lead.

AMERICAN WOMEN.

Newspaper discussion, contributed by indignant women, is growing, says a New York dispatch, r nod some biting criticisms made by Professor Herrick, of Chicago University, upon the lives of American women of the wealthy classes. He has published a novel caled Together." This is a typical passage from it, and one of the mildest of several quoted by the

"The fower of successful womanhood—those who have bargained shrewdly -are to be found over-fed, over-dressed, in great hotels, mammoth etenmers, and luxurious trains rushing hither and thither on idle travels. They have lost their prime function—they do not bear children. They are free, as never women were before And these women are custodians of men, not merely of their purses, but of their souls."

In another passage Professor Herrick is quoted as saying that the wives of Americans will sell themselves body and soul for money. Greed is their principal characteristic. One of his characters speaks of egotism as the postilence of the day which has corrupted the women in whom should be the nation's greatest conservative element

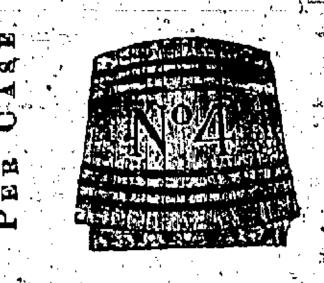

Other passages from the book as quoted are of a bluntness bordering on licence. The newspapers reproduce them with enjoyment as a bait to the libelled ladies to retort upon Professor Herrick, which they do in the strongest terms.
